In Game Gift Giving: The Essentials

Gift giving in Dragon Ageisn't just a charming side activity; it's a core mechanic that can affect your party's morale, unlock unique storylines, and even provide practical bonuses. Here's what you need to know before you start shopping.

1. How Gift Giving Works

Each companion has a Gift Ratingthat starts at 0. When you give a gift they like, the rating increases; when you give something they dislike, it drops. A high rating can:

- Unlock Companion-Specific Dialogue and quests.
- Enable Special Abilities or Companion Attacks.
- Provide Unique Items or Weapon Enhancements.
- Increase the companion's Combat Effectiveness in certain scenarios.

2. Where to Find Gifts

There are three main ways to acquire gifts:

1. Purchasing from NPCs: Shops across the world sell a variety of items, from simple trinkets to exotic artifacts.
2. Looting & Exploration: Many enemies drop items that can be used as gifts, especially in dungeons and ruins.
3. Crafting: Certain companions can craft items if you provide them with the necessary materials.

3. Gift Categories

Companions generally fall into one of four gift categories:

- Food & Drink – Ideal for characters who love culinary delights.
- Fashion & Accessories – Great for style savvy companions.
- Artifacts & Relics – Preferred by those with a taste for history and lore.
- Miscellaneous (Books, Scrolls, etc.) – Appeals to intellectuals and scholars.
